served in Japan and China. Part I. Vocabulary: A Survey of Buddhist Terms and Names Arranged According to Radicals with Japanese Read ings and Sanskrit Equivalents* (Tokyo, 1916); W. E. Soothill and L. Hodous, A Dictionary of Chinese Buddhist Terms with Sanskrit and English Equivalents and a Sanskrit-Pali Index (London, 1937); Hob- ogirin, Dictionnaire Encyclopedique du Bouddhisrne d'apres les sources Chinoises et Japonaises (first two fascicles, Tokyo, 1929); J. J. M. de Groot, Le Code du Mahayana en Chine. Son Influence sur la Vie Monacale et sur le Monde Laique (Amsterdam, 1893). On the identity of the image of Maitreya with that of a Chinese monk, see Helen B. Chapin, The Ch'an Master Pu-tai (Journal of the American Oriental Society, March, 1933, Vol. 53, pp. 47-52). A translation of portions of a famous popular Buddhist allegory which was put in the form of a novel is A. Waley, Monkey. Wu Ch'eng-an (New York, 1943).

Most of the material on recent Taoism is chiefly either in the gen- eral books on religion in China, mentioned above, or in special articles. The same is true of the religion of the masses. On T'ai Shan, see D. C. Baker, Tai Shan (Shanghai, 1925). See, on the Chin Tan Chiao, The Secret of the Golden Flower (London), a translation of a German translation (1929) by R. Wtthelm of the Tai 1 Hwa Tsung Chih.

On Islam in China, in addition to accounts in general books on re- ligion in China, such as E. H. Parker, China and Religion, and L. Wieger, Histoire des Croyances Religieuses et des Opinions P kilo so- phiques en Chine (of which an English translation has appeared), there are M. Broomhall, Islam in China (London, 1910), not espe- cially critical; d'Ollone (and others), Recherches sur les Musulmans Chinois (Paris, 1911); I. Mason, A Chinese Life oj Mohammed (Journal of the North China Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society, 1920, pp. 159-180); M. T. StaufFer (editor), The Christian Occupa- tion of China (Shanghai, 1922), pp. 353-358; and M. Hartmann, article China, in The Encyclopaedia oj Islam (Vol. 1, London and Leyden, 1913, pp. 839-854).

On the Jews in China the best work, containing material from many sources and articles by several authors, is W. C. White, Chinese Jews (Toronto, 3 parts, 1942).

On Christianity, K. S. Latourette, A History of Christian Missions in China (New York, 1929) contains a comprehensive account and further references may be found in its bibliography and footnotes. Events since the completion of that work may, be most conveniently found either in the files of The Chinese Recorder (a monthly periodical covering all Protestant missions, published in Shanghai into 1941), the late issues of The China Christian Year Book (published annually, with occasional gaps, in Shanghai, through 1939 (and endeavoring to cover all Protestant work), and, for Roman Catholic activities, J. M. Planchet, Les Missions de Chine et du Japon (published in Peking about every other year) and Les Missions de Chine (Shanghai, 1935-1940).
